

From: Michael <michael@theyfly.com>
Date: April 9, 2004 8:05:28 AM PDT
To: SKEPTICMAG@aol.com, "ike", "russ", derek@iigwest.com,
Vaughn@cfiwest.org, randi@randi.org, Plejarans_are_real@yahoogroups.com,
James Underdown <jim@cfiwest.org>
Subject: Re: [Plejarans_are_real] Re: Meier and Jupiter info

Russ, Russ,

Now you're probably wondering why I'm bothering to dignify your rather sophomoric nonsense with a response. Well, the fact of the matter is that, concealed in your rather lame attempt (Underground Video gave up and went away and the Tammy stuff just doesn't rank as an even half-way decent personal attack, which I'm immune to anyway) are a couple of things I agree with.

I always look to see if something one of my (many) detractors said about me or my work is true. Why not? I know who I am and what I've accomplished and I can always learn something new. Who better to point out your failings than your opponents, something the skeptics have failed to see.

I also like Ike. At least he's willing to do some research and check things out. Will he end up agreeing that the case is real? Time will tell, if he puts enough time into it. A weekend isn't enough time to settle the matter but it's a start. Then there's a boatload of other info to check, as well as to consider the still irreproducible physical evidence, the conditions under which Meier lived and produced all the evidence, etc. and the completely overlooked fact that it was only AFTER Meier became partially disabled (when his left arm was ripped off) that ALL of the physical evidence became BETTER in quantity, quality and variety. Live your life for one week only using one hand/arm and you'll begin to appreciate the reality of the case.

The other thing I agree with you about is my sharp tongue, however you're apparently unaware that for years the skeptics you're familiar with (including the Video folks), as well as others, have lambasted, attacked and slandered Meier without offering one shred of real proof. I just kinda figured I'd treat them to a little of their own medicine and they don't take it very well at all. I think they're a pathetic bunch of cowards as well, with the exception of Ike, however it turns out I think he's got more integrity than any of them.

As for the karate/little man thing, no, I'm not partial to that art and I've never thought of myself that way. I've always been creative, accomplished a lot and basically...non-confrontational. It's only when some bullies and cowards start wanting to take advantage that I feel like getting in their faces figuratively speaking.

So, if you have points to make make them. If you want to send really second rate personal attacks that are nothing compared to other stuff I receive go ahead and waste your time but I won't respond because they simply don't rate. Here's your opportunity to be read and have your comments and criticisms responded to honestly. Use it or lose it.

Best,

MH

You didn't go and swallow your tounge now did you?

Hi Tammy!!!! I like Ike! I'm wearing my "I like Ike" button right now. You were absolutely right, and you can claim it as a prediction, that I would learn a lot by just listening to you.

I learned that you truly can't keep up, this is why you get so sharp with your tounge. You are losing, and you feel it, and you feel it deep don't you. Your little 2nd grade playground back is up against the fence like it always was when you were younger, the bullies are all around you again aren't they. Spitting out their disdain for the little sissy. So you learn Karate when your older and you wag a costic tounge, because you are still so, so small inside. You slip into fantasy, you know, where the other geeks and outcasts live, no threatening company in here is there Tammy? But nothing helps. You still close your eyes and want them to all go away don't you, but you can't stand the sissy label, so you fight back, with what little arms you have, with that little costic tounge... and it goes on and on and on....

But enough of the Hannibal Lecter schtick.... This is my favorite bit of info.....

Any previous representations of authenticity of the Meier case in the Underground Video catalog should be ignored. Our findings will be presented to the Attorney General for possible prosecution for a Consumer Class Action Suit for Fraud. Underground Video will continue to make the Meier material available to investigators and the general public who desire to study the hoax and how it had been sold to the public for nearly 20 years.

Anyone who had previously purchased any Meier materials may write Underground Video to be included in a CONSUMER CLASS ACTION SUIT.

Underground Video
Meier Class Action Suit
PO BOX 527
Beverly Hills, CA 90213-0527
Say hello to Martha for me. Bubba gonna love you.....